

Student Daily Commute Distances for Detroit Schools

Educational reforms have broadly opened up public grade school options in Michigan. This has resulted in a complex and sometimes confusing environment where families have many local options in where to send their children to school. Nowhere is this truer than in the city of Detroit, where schools often open and close year to year, and where there are several different school systems in place, including charter schools, the Detroit Public School system (city schools), the state-run Educational Achievement Authority (EAA), suburban schools with open enrollment space, and private schools. Because of this complex environment, it is unclear where the youth from different parts of the city choose to attend school and how far their families are willing to travel. With this in mind, Data Driven Detroit (D3) set out to illustrate just how far Detroit students are traveling to school.

The Michigan Center for Educational Performance and Information (CEPI), working with the Michigan Center for Shared Solutions (CSS) provided D3 with unidentifiable enrollment data and census block codes approximating student residence locations from the October 2013 student count. With these data, D3 calculated the street-grid distance traveled from home (approximate location) to school for each student that attended a school in Detroit. We then calculated an average distance traveled by students of each school and listed the results by category.

The data within are organized in alphabetical order by school type: charter schools, Detroit Public School system schools, EAA schools and other local school districts operating schools in Detroit. We hope these numbers help parents, educators and policy makers better understand the commuting patterns and distances youth are traveling for education in the city and inform future educational decisions.

Summary Results

The below tables are a brief summary of the results of the analysis. These numbers represent the average school commute distance, by type of school. Student commute distances were aggregated by individual school first, and then school totals were averaged by type.

Table 1: Average Commute Distance, in Miles, by School Type

School Type	School-Average Commute (weighted by # of students)				St Dev (all levels)
	K-8	K-12	HS	All Levels
Charter*	3.53	4.63	4.92	3.94	2.27
DPS^	2.15	5.74	5.06	3.08	2.01
EAA	1.45	N/A	2.57	2.04	0.70

* Charter, EAA Charter, DPS Charter. ^DPS, DPS Self-governing. Hazel Park school district alternative schools in Detroit were not included in these numbers. Student locations outside Wayne, Oakland, Macomb or Washtenaw Counties were excluded in average distance calculations.

Table 2: Average Commute Distance, in Miles by School Level*

School Type	School-Average Commute	St Dev
High Schools	4.80	1.84
K-8 Schools	2.67	1.67

* K-12 schools average was not calculated due to limited numbers of schools. School levels were assigned by Excellent Schools Detroit.

Individual School Results

The following tables show individual school average student commutes. Students residing outside of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties were considered outliers and were removed before calculating the averages. The field "Total Students Study" reflects the number of students without the outliers. The schools are grouped alphabetically, by type of school administration.
