

Density of NESHAP Notifications Tied to Demolition Activity, 2009 to 2012

The National Emission Standards for Hazardous Air Pollutants (NESHAP) are a set of regulations requiring the property owner or operator of a demolition to notify the appropriate governmental agency before a demolition takes place. The property is then inspected and safe work practices are implemented to mitigate the emission of asbestos.

Sources: Michigan Department of Environmental Quality; Data Driven Detroit. Created December, 2014.

